

Abstract

A method and system for collecting and disseminating household information is disclosed. The predictive system diagnoses deterioration and problems in a house and provides an early alert or notification of potential problems. The system integrates the local 5 and remote monitoring of a house with the dispatching and coordinating of repairs. The system also generates and provides access to data that homeowner otherwise would not have access to or be able to generate.